NO RELIEF IN SIGHT

HARD TIMES GIVE NO INDICATION OF GROWING EASIER.

Dun & Co. Struggle to Find Something Encouraging and Bradstreet Draws a Black Picture of Future.

NEW YORK, June 1.-R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: It is a sign of cheering import that, in the finished business, represented by clearings and railway tonnage, there has been less decrease since the strike began than might have been expected. But in inchoate business, the orders which start the wheels, to result in tonnage and payment weeks or months later, there seems to be an actual decrease. Meanwhile the consequent in-The stoppages of iron furnaces between the Allegheny mountains and the Mississippi river has been complete and a great number of concerns manufacturing iron and others requiring soft coal or coke fuel have been forced to stop. Business cannot increase in volume under such circumstances, and yet payments through all clearing houses for the week show a decrease of only 20.8 per cent. compared with last year. Though a large number of works are idle, the demand for preducts is not what might be expected, either in volume or in urgency. The output of iron and steel has been suddenly and sharply reduced, but the reduced supply seems about as sufficient for the demand as it was a month ago, except in Bessemer. Sales of small lots of Bessemer pig at places as distant as West Troy and Duluth, for transportation to the Carnegie works, near Pittsburg, disclose how completely stocks are exhausted, and sales for delivery in July and August, at $11 to $11.15, a price $1.50 higher than prevailed a few weeks ago, indicates belief that the termination of the strike will not soon bring back the old prices. But for most products, notwithstanding the inter-ruption, the demand is unexpectedly nar-row, and buyers feel that the present advance is but temporary. Shipments of boots and shoes for the week, and for the past four weeks, are a little larger than a year ago, and there are orders for some staple products to warrant work for some time to come, but many factories are discharging cutters, or otherwise reducing hands, because their orders do not justify the hope of running much longer. Sales of wooi at three chief markets have been 3,-584,000 pounds for the week, against 2,766,000 last week, about 6,000,000 pounds per week being required from those markets for a full supply. New fine Territory and Texas wool has sold at 8 to 9 cents and 30 to 32 cents cleaned appears to be about the ruling price, but at Boston demoralization makes

Again the lowest price ever recorded has Again the lowest price ever recorded has been made for cash wheat, 56%c, at New York, against 75c a year ago, while the average in May, 1892, was 90c, and in April, 1891, $1.18%. Western receipts are naturally small, only 1,358,864 bushels for the week, against 2,915,599 last year, but Atlantic exports were only 807,800 bushels, against 2,241,091 last year. Corn is stronger, with exports about half as large as a year ago, and the unfavorable outlook for oats results in a higher price. Pork products are weak, with continuing large receipts. Cotton has varied little, though receipts from plantations have fallen off, for stocks in sight are very large, a new crop, for which prospects are decidedly good, is drawing near and the demands for goods is uncer-

Liabilities reported in failures for the fourth week of May were $2,593,087, and for four weeks ending May 24, $11,391,042, of which $4,445,605 were manufacturing and $5,-806,891 of trading concerns. Reports yet to come in may increase the aggregate to $14,000,000 for the month. Failures this week have been 183 in the United States, against 283 last year, and twenty-seven in Canada, against twenty-one last year. Two failures, both banking, are for $100,000 or

Situation Discouragingly the Same. NEW YORK, June 1.-Bradstreet tomorrow will say: The decidedly unfavorable condition of general trade reported last week continues without material improvement. Continued delay of tariff legislation prolongs the stifling effect on wholesale business. The great coal strike continues without sign of early improvement, no concession having been made by either side. More mills, factories and furnaces have closed their doors for want of fuel. The pig iron industry of the central Western States is practically at a standstill for want of soft coal or coke. At Pittsburg and vicinity the scarcity of fuel has greatly stagnated business. There are no new labor strikes of importance to record, but almost all of those previously reported are in existence. The favorable features come from Duluth, Omaha, Augusta and Jacksonville. Stimulation of trade at the Lake Superior port is largely due to the rapid shipments of bituminous coal, which had been accumulated, while needed rains throughout Nebraska have improved that State's crop prospects and caused more active purchases from Omaha jobbers. At most Western cities there has been practically no change from the depression of last week. Concessions in prices for woolen for future delivery fail to secure purchases from New England manufacturers, Cotton goods mills, where not affected by the strikes, are running on full time, but at cut prices. Philadelphia textile manufactures are operating from 50 to 75 per cent, of their plants, but on orders only At Baltimore salesmen report orders fair-ly frequent, but of smaller volume than heretofore, with the outlook for improvement and slower collections. The price movement in various staples continues the record of last week and week before, with concessions in quotations for wool, cotton goods, cattle, wheat, pork and coffee, and moderate advances for oats and lard. Steel billets, bituminous and anthracite coal and Bessemer pig tron advanced. owing to scarcity of fuel. Exports of wheat (wheat flour included).

CELINE CHAUMONT.

She Well Repaid Dumas for His Timely Assistance. Detroit Free Press. Celine Chaumont, the graceful and charming French actress, so well known in this country, has recently published her mem-oirs, and it is needless to say that they sparkle with amusing and striking aneclotes. One of these little stories illustrates the good and charitable side of a distinguished dramatic author, whose plays have often enough been charmingly brought be-fore the public by Mme. Chaumont's grace and skill. Alexander Dumas is the author in question. His famous father was fond of helping all kinds of literary and dramatic people, and his son certainly followed in

In telling the story of her early struggles "When I began my career at the Gymnase my baby daughter was four months old and my husband was seriously ill with the malady which was to take him away from me three years later. "In those days I earned 325 francs per month, and I had to furnish my own toilets for the stage. They were simple enough, heaven knows, for I was playing at that time only soubrette and small comic roles and in those days the Paris actress did not dream of ordering a dress from a famous modiste when she was to play a chamber-"But simple as they were, my dresses were none the less dresses, and the situation was a hard one, all the more so because I was unwilling at any price to be separated from my child. I would not send her into the country because, rehearing a play every day in the year (the Gymnase is open all through the summer), I should never have seen my baby. "This made it necessary to have a nurse in Paris, and all that, with the drain of home expenses, made my little 325 francs look very small. I soon found that I must supplement my theatrical work with some other industry.

"About that time a certain kind of em broidery had just made its appearance and was a great success. I was very skillful in that kind of work, and I fancied I could pay the wages of my nurse by making and selling these embroideries. So late at night and often in the wings of the stage, when I was waiting for my cue, I tolled away with my needle, and at the end of the month I found that my little budget balanced fairly well. "One day, just as I was going on the stage, I met Alexander Dumas, the great author. He caught me by the hand and "'My poor child, how pale you are. What is the matter with you?"
"This kindly solicitude of the great au-much, touched me deeply. I told him that I had frequent attacks of dizziness, felt tired all the time and had a terrible pain in the back when I was obliged to talk loudly or in an animated way for many

"He gradually drew from me the story of my overwork. Then, looking at me gravely, he said:

"This is anemia. You must take great care of yourself. You must eat rare meat and drink the best of Bordeaux wine."

"I could not help laughing, although I felt sad enough. 'You are indulging in pleasantries, Mr. Dumas,' I said. 'All the meat I can afford to buy I give to my sick husband and the nurse, and as for wine, and especially Bordeaux wine, it has been many a month since we have seen any in our little household."

"Ah, he said, with a strange smile, and our little household.'

"'Ah, he said, with a strange smile, and lifting his hat he went away. I felt a little abashed and hurt that I had told him so much of our poverty, but I said:

"'We are nothing to him, and he was very kind even to irquire about my health.'

"That night it was very late when I got home. In the middle of our trim drawing-room I found a huge basket containing many delicacies, as well as fat bottles of strong wine, and this letter:

"'My poor child:

strong wine, and this letter:

"'My poor child:

"'I am drinking at Brebant's with some friends, and drinking a certain quality of Bordeaux which would be just the thing to give you back your color and strength. Do me the kindness to taste it, and do not thank me. I am doing this purely from love of art. I say to myself that you will have great talent some day and I tall have great talent some day, and I tell other people so. Now you must take care not to let me pass as an imbecile. Keep your strength and fulfill my prophecy. Do not be afraid to draw on this wine bin again. Brebant tells me that he has plenty in stock. Courage and hope.

The future proved that Dumas was wise as well as charitable. The little, overworked Celine Chaumont, who could not buy meat for herself, became one of the most brilliant actresses of her day, and certainly contributed not a little to the establishment of Dumas's colossal fortune.

LOCKJAW FROM VACCINATION. A Child Dies After Being Vaccinated by a Board of Health Doctor.

A certificate of the death of Frank Evans, the three-and-one-half-year-old son of Cor-nelius Evans, of No. 333 East Eightieth street, was sent to the coroner's office by Dr. C. B. Murray, of No. 327 East Seven-ty-ninth street, on Monday. It stated that the child had been sick for six days, and had died in convulsions on May 28. It was supposed that the child's illness had been caused by a fall. Deputy Coroner O'Hare went to the house on Monday night. Mrs. Evans told him that she didn't believe that a fall had anything to do with the little one's death. She said that about two years ago he had fallen from a chair, injuring his head, but that the wound had healed some months ago. She said that the child had not been sick until after he was vaccinated by a physician attached to the Board of Health.

The vaccination had taken place on May 11. The wound on the child's arm soon became badly swollen. It grew worse until about a week ago, when the little fellow was taken violently ill. He had periodical attacks of convulsions, which the doctor decided were caused by an injury to the brain. The first time it was suspected that the sufferer's indisposition came from something else was when he found it difficult to eat anything. Gradually his jaws became rigid, and when the convulsions seized him his back would bend like a bow. During the last two days of his sufferings the child was unable to take any nourish ment and lay in a stupor, broken at regular intervals by convulsions.

When Dr. O'Hare ascertained the symptoms in the case he decided that death had not resulted from an injury to the patient's head. The particular nature of the conjaws pointed to a case of genuine lockjaw, and an examination convinced the doc-tor that it had resulted from the vaccination. He found that the child's arm from the elbow upward was swollen to nearl twice its natural size. At the point wher incision had been made there was at indentation as large as a man's thu The shoulder and neck were also swoller Dr. O'Hare said that from the condition of the arm and the surrounding parts there could be little doubt that the lockjaw was caused by vaccination. On Decoration Day.

Total sales of stocks yesterday amounted to 109,312 shares. It was another dull day on the Stock Exchange, the market being and on the whole the speculation Sugar was dealt in more largely than on Thursday, but the trading therein was feverish in tone during the morning, and a decline of 11/4 per cent. was recorded. The selling in the stock was largely based on rumors that the Senate investigation of the sugar deal would in some way prejuafternoon the influence of the scare had worn off, and on good buying the stock rose 2½, closing within ¼ of the highest boint reached at a gain of 1 per cent. on the day; preferred shares rose 2½, closing within ¼ of the highest price. Weather-Collections Easier. All along the line yesterday trade was slow. The cool weather is the cause of the duliness. Merchants report collections much easier than a month ago. Retail merchants, however, are still holding closely to the hand-to-mouth policy of buying goods, cuts in prices being no temptation to largely increase stocks. In dry goods especially is this felt. Wholesale grocers have become used to this method of buying and fill the bills promptly as they come in. Ir. prices changes are few. Staple groceries carry the firm and steady tone of months past. In dry goods the prices are governed largely by the size of the bill that can be sold. On Commission row receipts of fruits and vegetables are light, and a large per cent, of the arrivals is Eggs and poultry are firm and in request. Hog products move freely and prices somewhat unsettled. The local grain market yesterday was more active than on Thursday, while there was no material change in prices. A better feeling was manifested.
